Andris Nelsőns, who officially took on the role of BSO Music Director on September 27, returns to Boston November 6-22 to lead the Boston Symphony Orchestra in three programs of works that are designed to offer audiences a glimpse into the repertoire that has made such a deep imprint on the conductor, from his early life as a student of music to his current life leading performances worldwide. These programs will mainly focus on composers from the Slavic and Scandinavian traditions including Sibelius, Tchaikovsky, Stravinsky, Prokofiev, and Rachmaninoff, as well as the world premiere of a new work for chorus and orchestra by Latvian composer Ēriks Ešenvalds. In addition, two artists with whom Mr. Nelsons has collaborated frequently will join the orchestra as soloists: Latvian violinist Baiba Skride performing Russian-Tatar composer Sofia Gubaidulina’s 1980’s masterpiece Offertorium and Swedish trumpeter Håkan Hardenberger performing the American premiere of a new concerto by Australian composer Brett Dean. The November programs will also spotlight the close connection between the BSO and two prominent Boston artists: cellist Yo-Yo Ma, who will perform Prokofiev’s Symphony-Concerto for cello and orchestra, and American composer John Harbison, whose work, Koussevitzky Said—written in 2012 in honor of the iconic former BSO music director and founder of the Tanglewood Festival—will also be featured.

ANDRIS NELSONS AND THE BSO, NOVEMBER 6, 7, 8, AND 11
For his first program, November 6, 7, 8, and 11, Mr. Nelsons and the BSO are joined by Latvian violinist Baiba Skride, who is featured as soloist in the widely celebrated Russian-Tatar composer Sofia Gubaidulina’s moving violin concerto Offertorium, a 1980s work inspired by two of the composer’s greatest influences, Bach and Webern, and incorporating, as much of her music does, religious elements. Also on the program is Sibelius’s Symphony No. 2, one of his most popular works, a vibrant and rousing dialogue between Sibelius and the preceding two centuries of musical influences from across the European continent. ANDRIS NELSONS AND THE BSO, NOVEMBER 13, 14, 15, AND 18
Music Director Andris Nelsons leads the Boston Symphony Orchestra in four concerts of dramaTIC works with strong ties to theater and/or film, Thursday, November 13-Tuesday, November 18, beginning with Tchaikovsky’s concert overture Hamlet. At the center of the program is the American premiere of Australian composer Brett Dean’s Dramatis personae, for trumpet and orchestra. The Australian-born, Grawemeyer Award-winning composer wrote this concerto for Swedish soloist Håkan Hardenberger, who gave its first performance in August 2013 in Austria and with whom Mr. Nelsons has frequently worked. Dean’s work incorporates the spirit of theater and the silver screen, with allusions to music from superhero movies to Charlie Chaplin. The concerts close with Stravinsky’s The Rite of Spring, the score to an intensely dramatic ballet and on its own some of the most dramatic music ever written, a touchstone of 20th-century artistic achievement. ANDRIS NELSONS AND THE BSO, NOVEMBER 20, 21, AND 22
Music Director Andris Nelsons concludes his three-week stay Thursday, November 20-Saturday, November 22 with performances that welcome several guests and are filled with new and rarely heard music. International superstar cellist Yo-Yo Ma joins the Boston Symphony Orchestra for Prokofiev’s Symphony-Concerto for cello and orchestra, but otherwise these concerts are dedicated to vocal music. They open with Koussevitzky Said: Choral Scherzo with Orchestra, Boston-based composer John Harbison’s tribute to the BSO’s legendary music director, featuring the Tanglewood Festival Chorus. The chorus also joins the BSO for the world premiere of Lakes Awake at Dawn, for chorus and orchestra, by Latvian composer Ēriks
Ešenvalds. These large forces are expanded even further—welcoming vocal soloists soprano Victoria Yastrebova, tenor Pavel Černoch, and bass-baritone Kostas Smoriginas—for the final work on the program, Rachmaninoff’s The Bells, an eerily powerful work inspired by the composer’s artistic hero, Edgar Allen Poe. EDUCATIONAL INITIATIVES AT SYMPHONY HALL
As part of the BSO’s ongoing initiative to enhance its patrons’ awareness and knowledge of the music being performed, the Boston Symphony Orchestra continues to offer a variety of adult education initiatives at Symphony Hall for the 2014-15 season.

UnderScore Fridays is a uniquely formatted concert series. At all Friday-evening performances, members of the BSO introduce the concerts from the stage. Selected concerts also include comments from the stage by guest artists appearing in the program. Tickets for UnderScore Fridays range from $32 to $130.

“BSO 101: Are You Listening?” returns in 2014-15. In this popular Wednesday-evening series, BSO Director of Program Publications Marc Mandel is joined by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for presentations designed to enhance one’s listening abilities and general appreciation of music by focusing on works from the BSO’s repertoire. No prior musical training, or attendance at any previous session, is required, since each session is self-contained. “BSO: 101: An Insider’s View” also returns in 2014-15, offering three Tuesday-evening sessions focusing on behind-the-scenes activities at Symphony Hall with BSO musicians and administrative staff, including player perspectives on performing with the orchestra. All “BSO 101” sessions take place from 5:30-6:45 p.m. at Symphony Hall, and each is followed by a reception. Though the “BSO 101” sessions are free, please note that there is a nominal charge for the reception. Full details of the 2014-15 “BSO 101” schedule will be announced at a later date.

The popular Friday Preview Talks continue to take place from 12:15-12:45 p.m. before each Friday-afternoon subscription concert; the Symphony Hall doors open at 11:30am. Given by BSO Director of Program Publications Marc Mandel, Assistant Director of Program Publications Robert Kirzinger, and occasional guest speakers, these informative half-hour talks incorporate recorded examples from the music to be performed. The BSO also offers talks before each of the season’s four Thursday-morning Open Rehearsals at Symphony Hall. These take place from 9:30-10 a.m. The Symphony Hall doors open at 9 a.m., and the Open Rehearsal itself begins at 10:30 a.m. Admission to the Friday Preview Talks and Open Rehearsal Talks is free of charge free to ticket holders for the Friday-afternoon subscription concerts and Thursday-morning Open Rehearsals.
