Virtuoso American organist Cameron Carpenter makes his BSO subscription series debut in three performances Thursday, January 12-Saturday, January 14, joining the BSO and guest conductor Bramwell Tovey for performances of Terry Riley’s elaborate and wide-ranging 2014 organ concerto, At the Royal Majestic. This is the first time the BSO has performed a work by Mr. Riley, a hugely influential American composer known most of all for his seminal work In C, one of the first and most influential pieces of musical minimalism. Mr. Carpenter also joins the orchestra for Barber’s Toccata Festiva, a piece written to demonstrate the wide range of the Philadelphia Orchestra’s new organ for its dedication ceremony in 1960. Mr. Tovey closes the program with Elgar’s sweeping Enigma Variations, which depict in music some of the composer’s friends and acquaintances and one of the core works of the symphonic repertoire.
PROGRAM DETAILS
The wealthy Philadelphia arts patron Mary Curtis Bok Zimbalist founded the now-famous Curtis Institute of Music, of which Samuel Barber was an early student, and so when the Philadelphia Orchestra needed a new work to celebrate the completion of its new organ (which Zimbalist also paid for), she commissioned Barber to write it. The resulting Toccata Festiva has plenty of moments of bombastic festivity but many striking passages of nuanced and lyrical music as well, bringing forth a dazzling array of timbres and textures in both the organ part and in the orchestra. These are the first BSO performances of the piece.

Terry Riley's At the Royal Majestic—originally written for the Los Angeles Philharmonic to showcase the Walt Disney Concert Hall’s organ, as well as Mr. Carpenter’s immense talent and showmanship—taps into large swaths of American musical vernacular, including gospel, 1930s jazz and pop, ragtime, and blues. The work’s movements are based on three unrelated ideas: the first on Swiss artist Adolf Wölfli’s colored pencil drawing Negro Hall, which imagines what a Negro 1930s dance club in New York might look like; the second on a tower Mr. Riley built in his backyard for lizards that lived there; and the third on the pilgrimage thousands of people take each year to circle Mount Kalish in Tibet in search of spiritual enlightenment and blessings from the Hindu god Shiva.

Edward Elgar's “Enigma” Variations are at the same time some of the most direct, descriptive works in the repertoire and some of the most mysterious. We know how, when, and why they were composed, we know that each variation is a musical representation of an important person in the composer’s life, and we know the identities of those people (with one exception) as well as to which variation each belongs. But the enigma lurks in the most fundamental aspect of the work. These are, after all, Variations on an Original Theme, and we do not know the theme; there is no melody or musical idea that is called out or is discernable as such. “The ‘Enigma’ I will not explain—it’s ‘dark saying’ must be left unguessed, Elgar wrote.” Further, through and over the whole set another and larger theme ‘goes,’ but is not played ... so the principal Theme never appears, even as in some late dramas the chief character is never on stage.”

Educational Initiatives at Symphony Hall

As part of the BSO’s ongoing initiative to enhance its patrons’ awareness and knowledge of the music being performed, the Boston Symphony Orchestra continues to offer a variety of adult education initiatives at Symphony Hall for the 2016-17 season.

This season will continue the popular “Casual Fridays” program, which encourages both patrons and the orchestra to come dressed in comfortable clothing. The three evening “Casual Friday” concerts in September, February, and March will feature both a pre-concert reception and post-concert reception with live music until midnight. The evening will incorporate a technology component to engage audiences with content related to the evening’s performance.

BSO 101 returns in 2016–17, again offering the opportunity to increase your enjoyment of BSO concerts. These free Wednesday sessions with BSO Director of Program Publications Marc Mandel joined by members of the BSO are designed to enhance your listening abilities and appreciation of music by focusing on upcoming BSO repertoire. In addition, each session is followed by a free tour of Symphony Hall. Dates and more information will be provided in your Subscription Package, and at bso.org in the fall. RSVPs for the BSO 101 sessions will not be accepted until the fall. Visit bso.org for details. Full details of the 2016-17 “BSO 101” schedule will be announced at a later date.
The popular Friday Preview Talks continue to take place from 12:15-12:45 p.m. before each Friday-afternoon subscription concert; the Symphony Hall doors open at 11:30 a.m. Given by BSO Director of Program Publications Marc Mandel, Assistant Director of Program Publications Robert Kirzinger, and occasional guest speakers, these informative half-hour talks incorporate recorded examples from the music to be performed. The BSO also offers talks before each of the season’s four Thursday-morning Open Rehearsals at Symphony Hall. These take place from 9:30-10 a.m. The Symphony Hall doors open at 9 a.m., and the Open Rehearsal itself begins at 10:30 a.m. Admission to the Friday Preview Talks and Open Rehearsal Talks is free of charge to ticket holders for the Friday-afternoon subscription concerts and Thursday-morning Open Rehearsals.
