In two weeks of appearances November 15-27, Boston Symphony Orchestra Music Director Andris Nelsons continues a six-week series of Symphony Hall performances, the longest run of performances led by Mr. Nelsons since his inception as BSO Music Director in 2013. For the November 15-17 concerts, Maestro Nelsons and the orchestra welcome trumpet soloist Håkan Hardenberger, a close friend and frequent artistic collaborator of Mr. Nelsons, for Aerial, an inventive and virtuosic concerto for trumpet and orchestra, written for Mr. Hardenberger by prominent Austrian composer, conductor, bassist, and singer HK Gruber.
On Monday, November 19, Maestro Nelsons, Mr. Hardenberger, and the BSO take the program to Carnegie Hall in New York for a one-night-only performance. The BSO returns to Carnegie Hall for two more performances in March.

Maestro Nelsons then leads the orchestra in Mahler’s exhilarating, expansive Symphony No. 5. The following week of performances, November 23-27, features a program dedicated to two contrasting Beethoven symphonies. The concerts begin with the composer’s high-spirited, gregarious Fourth Symphony, and Mr. Nelsons also conducts the orchestra in the Symphony No. 5, the most familiar and undoubtedly one of the greatest symphonies in the repertoire.

Details about Mr. Nelsons’ last fall program with the BSO, the orchestra’s “Leipzig Week in Boston,” will be forthcoming.

ANDRIS NELSONS, HÅKAN HARDENBERGER, AND THE BSO, NOVEMBER 15-17

Performances take place Thursday, November 15, and Saturday, November 17, at 8 p.m., and Friday, November 16, at 1:30 p.m.

In three performances Thursday, November 15-Saturday, November 17, Swedish trumpeter Håkan Hardenberger, a longtime collaborator of Mr. Nelsons, returns to Symphony Hall as soloist in Aerial, a concerto composed for him by the Viennese composer HK Gruber. Featuring piccolo trumpet and cow’s horn as well as standard trumpet, the concerto makes full use of Hardenberger’s considerable virtuosity and expressive range.

Maestro Nelsons and the orchestra then take on Mahler’s Symphony No. 5, an all-consuming work that the composer described as “chaos, which is constantly giving birth to new worlds and promptly destroying them again.” The composer’s first completely instrumental symphony since No. 1, it marked a new, highly individual, and influential approach to writing for orchestra that would carry through the remainder of his symphonies. The Fifth includes the famous and moving Adagietto movement for strings and harp.

ANDRIS NELSONS AND THE BSO, NOVEMBER 23-27

Performances take place Friday, November 23, at 1:30 p.m., and Saturday, November 24, and Tuesday, November 27, at 8 p.m.

Music Director Andris Nelsons leads three performances of an all-Beethoven program Friday, November 23-Tuesday, November 27, featuring the composer’s Symphonies Nos. 4 and 5. Beethoven often composed several major works at the same time, each a distinctly different expressive outlet. He began sketching his Fifth Symphony in 1804 but didn’t complete it until four years later. The innovative construction of that piece and its unprecedented intensity are embodied in the opening four notes, the most famous theme in classical music. But despite the work’s ubiquity, it nonetheless retains its power to surprise and move the listener with its dramatic journey from struggle to triumph. In the interim between the Fifth’s first sketches and its completion, Beethoven wrote some of his most lyrical music—for the opera Leonore (which would become Fidelio) and the Fourth Symphony. The latter’s consistent high spirits contrast starkly with the struggle against fate embodied in the Fifth.

Educational Initiatives at Symphony Hall
As part of the BSO’s ongoing initiative to enhance its patrons’ awareness and knowledge of the music being performed, the Boston Symphony Orchestra continues to offer a variety of adult education initiatives at Symphony Hall for the 2018-19 season.
This season will continue the popular “Casual Fridays” program, which encourages both patrons and the orchestra to come dressed in comfortable clothing. The four evening “Casual Friday” concerts on November 2, February 22, January 11, and April 12 will feature both a pre-concert reception and post-concert reception with live music until midnight. Each evening also features special Conductor Cam seating, which allows patrons to watch the conductor from the orchestra’s perspective on high-definition screens. During the 2018-19 season, the BSO will continue to collaborate with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) to offer concert attendees sitting in the Conductor Cam seats access to ConcertCue, an innovative app that presents contextual program notes and images on concert-goers’ mobile devices in real-time during the musical performance.

BSO 101 returns in 2018-19, again offering the opportunity to increase your enjoyment of BSO concerts. These free Wednesday sessions with BSO Director of Program Publications Marc Mandel and Associate Director of Program Publications Robert Kirzinger, joined by members of the BSO, are designed to enhance the audiences listening abilities and appreciation of music by focusing on upcoming BSO repertoire. These sessions take place from 5:30-7 p.m. at Symphony Hall; in addition, each session is followed by a free half-hour tour of Symphony Hall. Click here for more information.

The popular Friday Preview Talks continue to take place from 12:15-12:45 p.m. before each Friday-afternoon subscription concert; the Symphony Hall doors open at 11:30 a.m. Given by BSO Director of Program Publications Marc Mandel, Associate Director of Program Publications Robert Kirzinger, and occasional guest speakers, these informative half-hour talks incorporate recorded examples from the music to be performed. The BSO also offers talks before each of the season’s four Thursday-morning Open Rehearsals at Symphony Hall. These take place from 9:30-10 a.m. The Symphony Hall doors open at 9 a.m., and the Open Rehearsal itself begins at 10:30 a.m. Admission to the Friday Preview Talks and Open Rehearsal Talks is free of charge to ticket holders for the Friday-afternoon subscription concerts and Thursday-morning Open Rehearsals.
